Introduction to Computer Science Class to be offered Online

Weed /COS – Due to popular demand, a second section of Introduction to Computer Science at College of the Siskiyous has been added to spring 2018 semester list of course offerings. Mike Graves is the instructor. This three-unit class will be taught online via Canvas. Students who wish to register should use course number CSCI 1001-03 / CRN 3433. Students enrolling in this section will need effective computer skills with reliable internet access. This class meets associate degree requirements as well as transfer requirements to any one of the 10 UCs, all 23 of the CSUs, Southern Oregon University, Oregon Institute of Technology, and is articulated for CAN CSCI 2. It also meets the Area F – General Education requirement for College of the Siskiyous.

This class includes discussions on the Internet, the World Wide Web, application software, the components of the system unit, sources of input and output, storage, operating systems, system software, and utility programs as well as hands-on assessments designed to teach the students the basics of word processing, building and managing spreadsheets, and creating presentations. Prior to the first day of the semester students should check the online course website at www.siskiyous.edu/online/ for course information and other updates.

For more information about this class contact Instructor Graves by email: graves@siskiyous.edu. For class registration information, call the Admissions and Records Office at (530) 938-5500. The Weed Campus can also be reached by calling (530) 938-5555 or toll-free, (888) 397-4339. Students may register in person at the Weed or Yreka campus or online (anytime) at www.siskiyous.edu. Registration fees are due upon enrolling for classes.
