COS Offers Life Story Writing on Yreka Campus This Summer

Weed / COS - It's said that each of us has at least one book in us. If you have ever wanted to explore writing about your own life, College of the Siskiyous will be offering Life Story Writing (ENGL 0599 / #5107) at the Yreka Campus this summer beginning June 6. This noncredit (zero unit) class is one of the many classes offered by the Continuing Education Program and is tuition-free.

According to instructor, Jacalyn McNamara, Life Story Writing entails writing about your own personal experience. "For some, that might mean writing a memoir for grandchildren or for publication. For others, it may mean writing poems or personal essays. For some who have sensitive material, it could mean fictionalizing their account with short stories or a novel. Whatever your life experience, this class can help you get started or help you finish your manuscript. "

The class is designed to allow time for private one-on-one conferencing, group workshops, and lab time that gives access to computers and printing. This will allow for some flexibility with the schedule. ENGL 0599 will begin Wednesday, June 6 and runs from 9 a.m. to 1 p.m. every Wednesday through August 1. For more information about the class email mcnamara@siskiyous.edu.
