Tuition-Free Life Story Writing Class to Begin January 28

Weed / COS –The College of the Siskiyous is offering a non-credit (tuition-free) course titled “Life Story Writing” (ENGL 0599 / CRN 0599) on Mondays this spring from 10 a.m. to 12:10 p.m. beginning January 30 at the Weed Campus in the Learning Resources Center.

Taught by James Corcoran, this course will include activities to help writers get started, activate memories, engage cognitive processes to sharpen writing skills and increase cognitive strength. Steps in rewriting and ways to get manuscripts into print will be included. Join us and share the writing journey. Sign up for this class online at www.siskiyous.edu or at the Weed or Yreka Campus. There is no cost to sign up for this class.

For more information about this class contact instructor Corcoran by email: jcorcoran1@siskiyous.edu. For information about classes offered through the COS Continuing Education Program Office contact Kim Freeze, Interim Director of Non Credit and Community Education by email: ContinuingEducation@siskiyous.edu or call (530) 841-5834. Information can also be found online at <http://www.siskiyous.edu/continuinged/>.

Registration for spring semester classes is open and students should register soon. For class registration information, call the Enrollment Services Office at (530) 938-5500. The Weed Campus can also be reached by calling (530) 938-5555 or toll-free, (888) 397-4339. Register in person at the Weed or Yreka or register online (anytime) at www.siskiyous.edu.
